Grouches produce ill tem-these hasten you to your

Lorena Campbell

Our community was saddened last Friday, on hearing of the sudden death of Lorena Campbell, oldest daughter of Mrs. Ida Campbell. Three times in 22 months has death entered this home. First the husband and father went in May 1914, then last October, the youngest child; and now the oldest, the mainstay of the home, the mother's right hand, is taken. Mrs. Campbell is indeed stricken and deserves the sympathy of the entire community. And may it not be silent sympathy alone, for often a few words, a kindly act in the dark hours help immeasurably.

Lorena Campbell was born May 13, 1902 at Cleaborn, Texas.
Died at her home 5 1/2 miles northeast of Clovis, March 23, 1916, of tubercular pneumonia.
She leaves a mother, two sisters and three brothers to mourn her early departure.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. C. J. Quante at the home Friday afternoon, March 24.
The body was laid to rest in the Texico cemetery.

We commend the sorrowing family to the Savior, "who was acquainted with grief" and knows how to comfort the sorrowing.

One English Volunteer Policeman Who Probably Will Not Lose Much
By the War.

The foibles of his ally John Bull are even now not quite invisible to the Frenchman. And the following story of a special constable, or volunteer policeman, in London, is related not without malice by a Paris paper. Just after the last Zeppelin raid, when the orders against showing lights were very strict, this special was on duty in one of the suburbs. Every time he saw a house that was letting its lights shine too freely out of its windows he knocked at the front door and called the attention of the householder to the rules in such cases made and provided and to the danger. And, as in becoming a special constable he had not ceased to be a man of business, he not only called attention to the badly shaded light, but suggested a contrivance for subduing the illumination. This contrivance, he said, he had tried in his own house with the most satisfactory effect. All with the most disinterested air imaginable.
His next step was to draw from his overcoat pocket a sample of the contrivance itself, with the remark that he had just happened to be carrying it home to a particular friend who had asked him to procure it. The result was that at the end of his tour of duty he had written down in a little note book a couple of hundred orders for the wonderful shade; which meant that he was able to collect in commissions, at the rate of a shilling a shade, a matter of £25, or $25, or, to put it magnificently in French coinage, 125 francs.

Dog Has Silk-Lined Coffin.

Don, a beautiful collie dog belonging to Miss Ellen F. Mason, is dead, according to a dispatch from Newport.
R. I. He was run over by an electric car, and many residents in the villa colony will mourn his loss. His chief pleasure was to play in the pretty fountain in the grounds of his mistress' estate in Rhode Island avenue, always begging to have the water turned on for his frolics.

His grave is beneath an evergreen near the fountain. He had a silk-lined coffin, and a suitable slab is being made which will be simply marked
"Don."

Don II has now appeared on the scene. He is a very young Scotch collie.
Among other graves of dogs marked with slabs at Newport are those on the estates of Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, Mrs. George B. De Forest and Mrs.
Royal Phelps Carroll.
